Lucy Butters, Master Facilitator, Cultural Intelligence Center

Lucy Butters is a specialist in Cultural Intelligence and founded Elembee Ltd in 2010 to support international ambition and inclusion, working primarily with universities in the UK. She is a Master Trainer with the Cultural Intelligence Center.

Recent work includes training and coaching for leaders of companies participating on the Scottish Government's international Scale-Up program.

Previously she worked for the British Council in international cultural relations roles linked with developing and implementing strategy to support the international ambitions of universities in Scotland. On a personal level Lucy is the mother of triplet boys who are a constant reminder of the need to adjust her thinking, actions and expectations.
